The Harpooner's Story.

New Bedford, June 7, 1883.

Dr. J. C. Aten & Co.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when the others of the crew and myself were laid up with senery. Our hodies were bloated, gunes worken and bloeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Takelt by and largo we were pretty badly off. All our line-jules was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of Aten's Sansarianilla and gave us that. We recovered on it quicker than I have ever seem membrought shoutby any other treatment for Scurvy, and I've seem a good deal of it. Beston no mention in your Almanacof your Sarsaparilla being good for secrety, I thought you ought to know of this, and so send you the facts.

WHY HE WAS AFFECTED! Buying a Troument from the Han She Once

Let me tell you one thing about hopping, dear reader. There was a clerk behind the counter in the white goods department of a dry goods store. He had the air of a foreign nobleman, with a bewitching admixture of the Americans dude. [s:The svery sight sof him was enough to conjure up a hale of romance around his darling, curly little head. In front of that same counter, seated placidly on a stool, was a distinguishedly fashionable young woman. She was making a selection of under, clothing; and anybody familiar with the beauty, intricacy and cost of the garments; now worn by out-and-out swell belies can understand when I say that she seemed to be buying every thing that struck her fancy, that sh thing that struck her lancy, that she was indeed purchasing liberally. But it wasn't possible, I thought, that a visibly growing emotion on the part of the pretty clerk was due to the magnitude of the sales. No, nothing directly connected with mere trade could have so stirred the depths of his delicate. soul. He got worse and worse. His hand quivered, his eyes filled with tears, his replies to her casual ques-tions grew more incoherent, and finally, with a sigh that almost rent his moderate bulk, and a grip of his in-finitessimal forehead between his trembling palms, he dashed out of the "What in the name of goodness the matter with the fellow?" I in-quired of the superintendent of the de-partment after he had detailed another clerk to attend to the fair customer.

A MOHAMMEDAN TRADITION The Miraculous Stone in the Great Mosqu

In the Kaaba, the most ancient and remarkable building of the great Mosque at Mecca, is preserved a miraculous stone, with the print of Abraham's feet impressed upon it. 1 is said, by Mohammedan trudition, t be the identical stone which served th patriarch as a scaffold when he helped Ishmael to rebuild the Kaaba, which had been originally constructed by Seth, and was afterwards destroyed by the delinge. While Abraham stood upon this stone it rose and sank with bim as he built the walls of the sacred edifice. The relic is said to be a frag-ment of the same gray Mecca stone of which the whole building is con-structed, in this respect differing from the famous black stone brought; to Abraham and Ishmael by the ange corner of the exterior wall of th Kaaba, which is generally supposed to be either a meteorite or fragment of volcanic basalt. It is supposed to have been originally a jacinth of daz, zling whiteness, but to have been made black as ink by the touch of sinful man, and that it can only recover its original purity and brilliancy at the day of judgment. The millions of kisses and touches impressed by the kisses and touches impressed by the faithful have worn the surface considerably; but, in addition to this, traces of cup-shaped hollows have been observed on it. There can be no doubt that both the relies associated with Abraham are of high antiquity, and may possibly have belonged to the pre-historic worship which marked Mecca as a sacred site long before the followers of the Prophet had set up their shrine there.—Blackwood's Magazine

A French-Canadian Hotel. The house was new, and appeared clean and comfortable. The host was a French-Canadian, who, to do him justice, tried to do his best for the ac commodation of his guests, but, unfortunately for the comfort of our party his knowledge of hotel-keeping was limited. The house was filled with summer boarders, which meant, in Canada, tribes of children with their mammas and nurses. Not a masculine was to be seen anywhere (they knew When the boarders descended better). When the boarders descended to the dining-room with appetites that would have done ample justice to a good meal, they were appalled by the heterogeneous mixture of babies, mothers, and nurses who had possession of every table in the room. And when at last a space was cleared by one of the waiters for the quartette, it was to sit down to soiled table linen and the refuse of food left by the last relay of babies. Meanwhile the respective mothers glared at the intruders, and passed audible remarks of a disagreeable nature anent the new arrivals. The landlady followed her disgusted guest out of the dining-room, and apologetically explained matters by saying they never had taken summer boarders before; but they were anxious to get their house paid for, and they thought it would help. But, mon Dieus we lose money all the time. We have thirty-five children in the house the oldest only ten years old, and when they are not quarreling the nurses are."-Agnes Fraser Sandham, in Marper's Magdzine.

It is known that Licutenant-General Sheridan has not yet definitely tendered Springfield for contributions of to any army officers the positions as alds of his staff, which will be vacant in October by the detachment of Colonela Gregory and Davis. An army officer of high rank said yesterday that Captain Stanhope Blunt, of the Ordnance Corps, will probably be tendered one of the vacancies. Captain Blunt is now on duly at the headquarters of the army as Inspector-General of rifle prac-tice, and is an officer held in very high repute in the service for his professions! as well as personal qualities. Colonel Duvis, who has just returned from a visit to General Sheridan, states that it is likely that new alds will not be named for a couple of weeks yet. The People Satisfied.

General Singleton remarked that the people as a whole have no sympathy with the disappointment of the few who fall to get what they want in the shape of office. It is impossible to know what the sentence is, but it is the prevailing opinion among navy officers that it is very severe, even if it is not to be discovered from the convices.

one side and the Hill forces, backed by the influence of Mr. Tilden, on the other, for the Governorship, and that such a state of affairs would, without doubt, lead to a division of the party throughout the State and certain disaster at the polls. A gentleman intimate with the sage of Greystone said to a reporter yesterday afternoon: "Mr. Tilden is incensed at the fallure of the Administration to make his protege, J. Edward Simmons, Collector, and Smith M. Weed, Surveyor; and to my knowledge was at first inclined to entirely ignore the overtures clined to entirely ignore the overture offined to entirely ignore the overtures for peace from the Administration. Manning's persistence in seeking an interview led, however, through the intervention of mutual friends, to Mr. Tilden's consent to receive him. To-day's visit is the result. What will be the outcome remains to be seen."

Taily for Telegraph Operators. New York, September 3.-The story which was circulated Tuesday to the effect that the Western Union operators were meditating a strike on the 15th inst., in the event of their not being allowed extra compensation for extra work was thus commented on by a prominent Western Union official.
"We are not aware and do not believe that there is any general dissatisfaction among our operators, and certainly there is no indication that a strike is imminent. Business has been duil in every branch of trade, and the telegraph companies have feit it. For this reason we have found it necessary to impress our regular men into the service for a little extra work, for which they have been allowed no extra compensa-tion. The stagnation of business has also led to a shortening up of our forces. The policy of the com-pany is to relieve the regular men of extra work just as fast as the increase of business warrants it, by giving employment to an increased number of regular operators who are now out of work. There has been a considerable increase in our business during the past month, particularly in the West and the Northwest, and the outlook is much more encouraging than it has been for several months. Of Board of Health in Montreal, satisfied him that there were about 2,000 cases of small-pox in Montreal. The advisability of allowing the Montreal Lactosse team to visit Toronto on Saturday next was course, an increase in our business in-dicates a general improvement in the business of the country at large, and this will at large, and this will be calculated to help our employes. In short, dull times have affected operators as they have other workers, and the sup-ply of men exceeds the demand. This is unfortunate, but not more so as applied to the telegraph business than to others. We are doing as well by our employes as we can, and we believe the fact is too well appreciated by them to precipitate Holland's Defense. NEW YORK, September 3.-J. J. Holand the man who shot Tom Davis has friends in the city whose intention it is to do everything in their power to assist him in his trial for murder. They assert that Holland and Hill came to this city for the express purpose of detecting the Davis brothers in their swindling operations and bringing about their prosecu-tion. The operators in "sawdust" games did most of their business in the unsectled districts of the Northwest and South west. It is understood that Holland's lawyers will adopt the following line of defense. Holland went to the office of the Pavis Bros., intend-ing to obtain evidence against them, and if possible, to capture them then and there. He needed for this purpose to obtain possession of the contents of the bar prepared by Davis, whether it be good money or bad, or blank paper. He was prepared for trickery, and when he saw the bag disappearing he jumped forward to seize it. Davis rushed toward the Texan, who, expecting to be attacked, drew his pistol and used it in self-defense.

The Pennsylvania Granger Picnic. HARRISDURG, Pa., September 3 .- The attendance at the Grangers' picnic yesterday exceeded by 5,000 the big day's gathering last year. It is estimated that about 30,000 people were on the grounds. The meeting where addresses were delivered was largely attended, and strange to say the hurden of the speeches de-livered was "anti-discrimination." The leaders were John Norris, of the Phila-delphia Record, and Victor Prolette, of the Veteran Grangers, known through-out the length and breadth of the coun-could be; and if the assertions of the granger element go for aught, it will be made to play an important part in the coming political campaign.

To-day is what is known as "big day," and Governor Pattison, who is down for the principal address, is expected to work up considerable Democratic enthusiasm, if he is able to be present, which is doubted. If he does not arrive in time, some other representative of the State administration will be brought forward. The piculc will virtually close on An Unknown and Fatal Malady.

CHARLESTON, W. VA., September 3. great deal of excitement prevails of Sycamore Creek, Clay County, this State, over a malignant form of disease which can not be explained by the local physicians. Every hour brings news of physicians. Every hour brings news of snother death. The maiady is thought to be flux, but it is a more fatal disorder, with symptoms similar to cholers. In the family of Esquire Sizemore, four sous cled within a few hours. Others of the family are sick with the disease. It is mostly confined to children, who are attacked with sickness and die in a very short time, being paralyzed with pain. Sycamore Creek region, where the disease prevails, is sparsely populated with a hardy class of mountaineers. The air and water are pure. A prominent physician of this city has volunteered his services to investigate the disease. It seems to be of the gate the disease. It seems to be of the same nature as that which prevailed in Southwest West Virginia and the adjoining part of Kentucky last year. Y. M. C. A. Notes.

DECATÓR, ILLINOIS. BUILDING STONE.

The Future of This important Industry in This Country. Concerning the future of the building-stone industry little that is defidite can be said. As the population increases and, becomes, more fixed in its abode, there maturally arises a demand for a more durable building material than wood, which is still largely used an the country towns and smaller cities. As wealth accumulates, too, better and more substantial buildings are creeted, which are often profusely embellished with the fluer grades of ornamental stones. The demand, then, is sure to increase. In regard to the amount of increase, in regard to the amount of the supply there can be no question, everything would seem to depend on the quality, variety, and cost of work ing of 'set-to-be-discovered material Are we to confique to import as now the tiner grades of our ornamental actual or will our own quarries, yet perhaps to be opened, produce enough and more than enough for our own use? I am moined to think the latter In many of the Eastern and earliest In many of the Eastern and earliest to be settled States very little is yet known regarding their final resources in Maine, for instance, fully one-half of the State is yet unknown land Its present quarries are nearly all immediately upon the coast. What are the resources of its immense interior can not with certainty be foretold. In the Southern and Western States and Ter-ntories, this condition of affairs is naturally greatly magnitud. The Vir-guilas. North and South Carolina, and guilas. North and South Carolina, and Georgia, all contain excellent material, none of which is now in our principal markets. Michigan can furnish brown sandstones in great abundance fully equal to any now quarited in the more Eastern States, and other sandstones of a beautiful mellow tint, are known to occur in Western Arizona. The Rocky Mountain region contains an shundance both in vertex and outs. abundance, both in variety and quantity, of granites, sandstones, marbles, and the more recent volcanic rocks, as basalts, rhyolites and trachytes. Some of these are very beautiful, excelling anything in this respect from the East orn States - George P. Merrill, in Pop ular Science Monthly

AN ARCHITECTURAL WONDER.

One of the Marvels of the Civilized World— A French Conception.

The French are a people of ideas, and as a consequence lead the world in many departments of science and art. They know more about the construction of the dramas than do the writers of other nations, and they are constantly furnishing novel concepnons in painting and statuary. The Bartholdi statue is one instance of this But they have another project on fdot which promises to be one of the marvels of the world. Mons J Boundals, a French engineer, proposes to illuminate all Paris by what he calls a Sun Column It is to be one thousand one bundred and eighty feet high The ground floor will be a permanent museum of electricity, super-imposed will rise a six story column, surmounted by a prominade capable of accommodating two thousand persons he center, a granite core, will be sixty feet in diameter, and will be sur rounded by a highly artistic frame-work of iron faced with copper. This will be divided into six stores each, containing sixteen rooms, sixteen feet in height and fifty feet square. These rooms will be used for what is known as protheratic treatment. Patients will find here a purity of air equal to that upon the highest mountains The central core of this grant monument will be hollow to permit the use of scientific experiments on the top will be placed an enormous electric lamp that will cast a flood of electric Ismp that will cast a noou or light over all Paris; it will have an intensity equal to two million Carcel burners. Above all will loom up a statue representing the Genius of Science. This wonderful building, when finished, will be the most extraction of the world, and will be the most extraction of the world, and will be the most extraction of the world, and will be the most extraction of the world, and will be the most extraction of the world.

add greatly to the attractions of the French capital.—Demorest's Monthly. ALASKA,

Forests Containing Lumber Enough Supply the World,

Alaska forests contain enough timber to supply the world. The forests of pine, spruce, hr, and hemlock cover every island of the archipelage and a goodly portion of the mainland.

The trees are straight and tall and grow close together. The only saw mill at present in operation is at Doug las Island, and so far there has not been a cord of timber cut for shipment. The trees, as a rule, do not always cut up into good sized boards. For fuel, bowever, the wood is excellent, and much of it is available for building purposes. There is little decorative wood. although the yellow pine is richly col-ored and might be used to advantage in interior work. Alaska spruce is an excellent variety, and often measures five feet in diameter.

It is considered the best spruce in the world, and the supply is very about dant. In the interior of the country timber is of much heavier growth that near the coast and on the islands Re garding the hemlock, there is a large supply, and the bark compares favor ably with that of all the Eastern trees used in tanning establishments.

No one has yet attempted to compute the value of the Alaska forests it may be they will not be necessar for years to come, but whenever wood grows scarce elsewhere, or wheneve civilization fastens itself upon Alaska the timber of the region will be found ready at hand and existing in rich proready at hand and evisting in the pro-fusion. Calculating only approxi-mately the value of our possessions to-day, the forests must be considered. Practically inexhaustible, they add most materially to the wealth of the Territory—San Francisco Chronicle

ROADSIDE SHADE. The Daily Sepublican Hat F Country Boods Can He Made Attract Намении & Моезий - Робсівнива.

> traveler Were it not for the 'utter neglect of our highways, except as a the district as a highway, is neglected, as a rule, by its owners—as much so as if it did, not, belong to them. Briars and thistles, mulleins and rushes, forest trees, rocks, wild flowers, and grass, dispute possession of the rodside But for the presence of evil weeds and tangles, which harbor vermin of all kind, it might be the best use to be made of the roadside, for this confusion of wild nature is very charming If let alone in most parts of the country east of the Allerhanies, the roads try east of the Alleghanies, the roads would soon be comfortably shaded with a great variety of native, forest trees, hung with vines, and the ground beneath them would be a nursery of wild flowers

The anti-weed laws which the Legislatures of several States have passed have a tendency to change this result is, that where the laws are en forced, shade trees as well as bramble and other useless growths disappear to gether, unless, indeed, the trees were growths by the roadside, several times during the season. This practice quickly brings in grass in the place, of shrubs and weeds. On new roads, the voices that the season is the place, of shrubs and weeds. young shade trees disappear, and on most highways, no trees less that three or four inches in diameter escape while the farmer, through whose land the road goes, comes to the aid of the "highway-man," and makes a clean sweep, telling every tree, small and great
The ideal road through cultivated

The ideal road tarough cultivated farming land, or fenced ground anywhere, is, pre supposing a good road way, one with broad, grassy areas on each side of the way, a foot-path on one or both sides, and shade trees, (it possible, natural forest trees), at convenient distances and of various kinds, casting their shadows upon the footh-path at least most of the way. The whole road should not be at any point all day in the shade, but the sun sline should reach every part of the surface at some time in the day, and remain several hours
Where a road is laid out through a wooded piece of ground, where the natural forest growth is cut away for the road, and so young trees may be selected and left to grow by the road side, it is often more difficult to secure a growth of proper shade trees, than where the road goes through land free from tree. The country boys seeing a nice young tree starting straight, smooth, and comely, are attracted by it, and are almost sure to want it for a riding whip or a cane, or for some other purpose, and so off goes its top They are not malicious about it, but never occurs to them that such a tree worth more to them as it stand than as a whip or a walking stick, and, least of all do they think of it as having been especially designated as one of the future shade trees of the road This is one class of passers, by whom the trees are endangered. Another class are real vandals and will cut down a tree because decent people are pleased by having it grow. For such we need stringent laws, protecting roadside shade trees. The so called "stump laws," which some Statehave, hardly cover it. Local organ izations for free planting are doing a useful work in many parts of the country, by fostering these roadside shade trees — American Agriculturist TRASSI.

Puculiar and Loud Staelling Javan Con diment My first acquaintance with trassi was among my earliest experience; of housekerping at Genteng Having got up rather late one Sunday morning lanopportunity taken by one of my boys to go the market which I had not then visited, I was discomfited by the tel rific and unwonted odor of decompo-sition. Confound it, my birds have begun to spoil,' I exclaimed to myself Hastily fetching down the box in which they were stored, I minutely exam ined and snifled over every skin, but all of them seemed in perfect condition In the neighboring jungle, though I searched half the morning, I could find no dead carcass, nor in the kitchen, where somehow I seemed nearer the source, but at last in the kitchen itsel I ran it to ground in a compact partel done up in a banana leaf. What on the face of creation is this? I said to the cook, touching it gingerly. Oh, master, that is trassl. 'Trassl. What, in the name of goodness is trassl.' Good for eating, master, in stew.' 'Have I been eating it.' 'Certaily, master, it.' master it is most excellent. You born fool, do you want to poison me and to die yourself? May I have a gotter, master, but it is excellent, he asseverated, taking hold of the front of his throat he the hold of the front of his throat, by the same token that a countryman at home would swear, 'as sure as death Notwithstanding these vehement assurances, I made it disappeat in the depths of the jungle, to the horror of the boy, who looked wistfully at it and would fain have fetched it back liad not I threatened him with the direct penalties if ever I discovered such putridity in the house again. I had then to learn that in every dish, native or European, that I had eaten since my arrival in the East, this extract of itecomposition was mixed as a spice, and it would have been difficult to convince me that by and by I would come knowingly to eat it daily without the slightest abhorrence. To make it they throw a mixture of shrimps and small hish into a sort of weak pickle made with salt and water, and put into a tight earther vossel. The pickle being thus weak keeps not the fish firm, and an a short time they all turn to a mash in the vessel, not having been in any manner cleaned, and when the fish is thoroughly decomposed the liquor is drawn off and the vile remainder is ht
